Adam is the Chief Lending Officer at BLC Community Bank in Little Chute, WI. With 18 years of experience in the field, he specializes in a variety of commercial loans such as Commercial Real Estate, Equipment Financing, Working Capital Lines of Credit, Acquisition Financing, and Healthcare Industry Financing. He enjoys working with business clients of all sizes. His main goal is to listen to his clients, be responsive to their needs, and offer valuable solutions that can help their business grow and be successful.

The best part of being a lender, for Adam, is forming long-term relationships with clients, many of whom also become great friends.

Adam's advice for new clients:

"Don't overlook the value of a good banking partner you can trust to put your best interest and the best interest of your business first."

Adam holds a Bachelor's degree in Economics from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. He grew up in Little Chute and still lives in the Fox Valley with his wife and daughters.

In his free time, he enjoys playing and watching sports (Go Badgers, Packers, Brewers & Bucks!), getting outdoors, and spending time with family.
